HOLLOWAY'S PILLS,

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS,
A VERY WONDERFYL CURE OF A DISORDERED LIVER AND STOKACE.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Charles Wilson,
30. Prince-creet, Glasgow, dated February
18th, 1867.

To Professor Hulleway.

SIR,—Having taken your Pills to remore a disease of the Stomach and Liver, under which I had long suffered, and having following your printed instructions, I have regained that health, which I had thought lost for ever. I had previously had recounse to several medical man, who are celebrated for their skill, but instead of suring my complaint, it increased to a most alarming degree. Humenly speaking, your pills have anved my life. Many tried to discusse me from using them, and I doubt not but that hundreds are deserred from taking your most excellent medicine, in consequence of the impositions prescised by many worthises wretches; but a pity it is that the deception used by others, should be the means of preventing many unhappy persons, under disease, from regaining health, by the use of your pills, I was in a most wrotched condition, and to my great delight, in a few days afterwards, there was a considerable change for the better, and by continuing to use them for some weeks, I have been perfectly restored to health, to the surprice of all who have witnessed the state to which I had been reduced by the disordered state of the Liver and Stomach; would to God, that every poor sufferer would avail himself of the same satonishing remedy.

A DISORDER IN THE CHEST.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Robert Calvert,
Chemist, Stokesly, dated January 29th,

Sir.—Mr. Thompson, National School-master of this town, desires me to send you the particulars respecting a son of his, who had been seriously ill for three years and a half, and who has derived the greatest benefit from the use of your medicines, after trying all ordinary resources without effect. The boy is eight years of aga, of strumous or sorofulcose constitution. He seems to have had a pleurisy which ended in a large collection of matter in the cheet, which eventually formed a peasage through the wales of the cheet, which eventually formed a peasage through the wales of the cheet, which eventually formed a peasage through the wales of the cheet, which eventually formed a peasage through the wales of the cheet, which ended in three flatulous sores, which continued to discharge large quantities of pus up to May, when he was induced to try your medicines; at this date he was in an apparent dying condition, and in the highest degree of Marsassus or Consumption. He had severe heetis fever, the urine deponing large quantities of sediment—contant distreasing cough—no appetite—and the Stomach rejecting nearly every thing he took, both food and medicine, he began by taking five of your pills night and morning, which were gradually increased to ten, which in a short time had the effect of completely curing the cough, the stomach affections, and restoring the urine to its natural state. His strength and flesh are also restored, and his appetite teen and digestion good.

THE EARL OF ALDBOROUGH CURBO OF A

LIVER AND STOMACH COMPLAINT.

Extract of a Letter from the Earl of Aldborough, dated Villa Messina, Leghorn, 2 ist February, 1846.

To Professor Hollowsy.

Sir —Various circumstances prevented the possibility of my thanking you before this time for your politeness in sending me your pills as you did. I now take this opportunity of sending you an order for the amount, and at the same time, to add, that your pills have effected a cure of a disorder in my liver and stomach, which all the meet eminent of the faculty at home, and all over the centiment, had not been able to effect; any! not even the waters of Carlabed and Marienbad. I wish to have another box and a pot of the oinment, in case any of my family should ever require either.

CHAMBERS V. PERRY.

His Honor Mr. Justice Dickinson delivered the judgment of the Court in this case in favour of the defendant.

DOE DEM. MAYOHAM V. TURNER.

Mr. FOSTER, on behalf of the plaintiff, moved that the Prothonotary be ordered to review his taxation of costs herein, it being sworn that he had refused to allow in taxation the fees for a third counsel: and it was submitted that though the Court will not order any interference with the discretion of the taxing Master, yet he said this was an important case, and involved necessarily much argument and the production of much evidence, and therefore a third counsel was not too much, citing cases as reported in 5 Dow. 378; 6 Bing N. C. 246; 1 Chit. 550, and Richards on Costs.

Mr. Lowe opposed the motion, and The Court refused the application, saying it was not usual to interfere in such cases, unless a strong case had been made out.

Motion dismissed without costs.

IN THE GOODS OF —— SHITH, (DEGEASED.)

IN THE GOODS OF — SHITH, (DECRARED.)
Mr. FISHER moved that administration be granted to the Messrs. Byrnes, creditors of the deceased.

Mr. Dowline moved that probate be granted to George Kenyon Holden and Riemor Terry, the executor and executrix, in the will named.

Granted.

LYNCH D. TURNER.

Mr. BROADHURST moved to make a Judge's Order a Rule of Court.

Granted.

THE QUEEN D. JOHN TERRY HUGHES.

Mr. FOSTER moved that this case be tried before a Special Jury of twelve.

Granted.

Mr. Michib now moved to make that rule absolute.

Mr. Firere, for Mr. Dillon, showed cause; and commenced by saying that be, in consequence of not being present at the time the rule wis was obtained, and not knowing what observations fell from the learned counsel who obtained the rule, he was at a loss in the first place how to answer the case as set forth in the notice of motion. But, be submitted, he had only to deal with the rule as it was now worded, and therefore it was not for him to make out what the indension of the Court, was in granting the rule. And to bring the rule most strongly against his client, it was for those who moved for an attachment, as it was highly penal in its acture, to make out a clear case of violation of the rule; and that he contended had not been made out; was in the rule had not been violated by practising in the Police Courts; and therefore he throught the rule course, and therefore he throught the rule course. The rule was discharged without costs.

The rule had not been violated by practising in the rule course, and therefore he throught the rule course, and therefore he throught the rule course, and therefore he throught to be discharged without costs.

The rule had not been violated by practising in the rule and therefore he talought the rule course. The rule was discharged without costs.

The rule was discharged

conly been suspended from practising as a solicitor, &c., "of this honorable Court," he clearly had a right to practise there, having been admitted as a practitioner "of that Court (the Court of Requests)," his name being still duly enrolled there as such, though an attempt had been made to have him suspended from practising in that Court also. Referring to the practice in such matters in England, it was contended that where an attorney is an attorney of several Courts, the mere fact of being suspended from, or indeed struck off the rolls of, one Court, did not spee facts suspend or strike him off the rolls also of the other Courts. And the analogy of the practice must hold good here. Paget v. Chambers, 7 Scott, 610; Ex parte Yates, 2 Moore and Scott, 618. Secondly, as to the infraction of the rule in the Police Office, it was contended that it had been both the practice in England, and certainly in this colony, for the magistrates, in their discretion, to allow any person, other than an attorney, to represent and advocate the interests of others before them; and if so admitted to practise, they practised not as "attorneys," but as "advocates" or "agents"; and here Dillon so acted in the prosecution mentioned, not as attorney but as "advocate" and "agent." And, lastly, the remaining point, the learned counsel said he would submit, was, whether it had been clearly shown that Dillon had wilfully and contemptuously infracted the rule of Court suspending, &c., no such case had been made out; and, on the contrary, to show that Dillon did act bond fals, and not wilfully, in thus practising in both Courts, since the said rule, but only as an "advocated as an attorney, &c., of this honorable Court since the said rule, but only as an "advocated as an attorney, &c., of this honorable Court of Dillon's was then read, which contained passages to the following effect:—That he had not acted as an attorney, &c., of this honorable Court of Requests, and the Vorsing the Writer and agent, and this tush capacities do not form any only been suspended from practising as a soli-citor, &c., "of this honorable Court," he Windeyer) would allow him (Mr. Dillon) under the circumstances, to practise in his Court, when Mr. Windeyer in a letter (which was now read) intimated that other than attornies were permitted to practise in the Police Courts, and that he might practise therein. That the Commissioner of the Court of Requests when saked to suspend him from practising in his Court said, that except under the circumstances stated in the 48th section of the Court of Request Act, he (the Commissioner) had no jurisdiction to suspend from practising any admitted "practitioner" of his Court; it was therefore contended, that Dillon had not wilkully and contemptuously infracted the rule of the Court; if he had misconstrued it, others had done so likewise, in whose opinion he (Dillon) had every reason to place the most implicit faith.

had every reason to place the most implicit faith.

Messrs. Michie and Lowe were heard in support of the rule; they contended, that though perhaps sufficient had already been shown by Dillon's affidavit that there had not been any wilful infraction of the rule, yet it even seems to admit that there had in substance been an infraction. The same argument was then made use of, as at the moving of the rule sin, as to the absurdity of the decision of the Commissioner of the Court of Requests, vir., that if his decision were correct, any attorney, though struck off the rolls of the Supreme Court, might still practise in the Court of Requests. And as to the practice in England, if an attorney be struck off the rolls of one Court, and he should be admitted of another, that other Court, upon being shown the rule striking him off the rolls of the one Court, would also carry that sentence into execution, as far as its own Court was concerned. The same course had been adopted here, but not with the same results, though the Court of Requests, it was urged, had no original jurisdiction, and no distinct class of practitioners were admitted there. Besides, it was urged, the affidavit of Dillon is deficient, coming here as he does to purge himself of a contempt, he ought to have sworn specifically and pointedly, that in acting as he admite he has done, he did so without any intention of acting contemptuously in reference to the Rule of Court; this he has not done, and therefore he has not purged his contempt in a way to get the rule sus discharged.

Their Honors the Judoss severally delivered their opinions.

Their Honors the Juneau severally delive

their opinious.

The Chirp Justice and Mr. Justice Treent's judgments were to the following effect:—Tha looking at the wording of the rule which suspended Mr. Dillon from practice, inasmuch as it did not go on to state that he was suspended from practising as a solicitor, &c., in all the Courts, superior and inferior, naming them all by name,—there was some room to doubt its proper construction, though it was the intention of the Court, at the time the rule was granted, that he should have been deprived for the period of all advantages that his position as attorney gave him. And, upon the whole, dicking at the rule as it now stands, they thought he had a right even now to practise in the Court of Requests,—as the clauses which gave the Commissioner of the Court of Requests,—as the clauses which gave the Commissioner of the Court of Requests,—as the clauses which gave the Commissioner of the Court of Requests,—as the clauses which gave the Commissioner of the Court of Requests proper to admit such practitioners. be discharged, but without costs.

His Honor Mr. Justice Dioxinson agreed with the rest of the Court, that there had been no infraction of the rule by merely practising in the Court of Requests; and His Honor, differing from his learned brethren, thought that the rule had not been violated by practising in the Police Courts; and therefore he thought the rule ought to be discharged with costs.

The rule was discharged without costs.

carriage, for which the latter had chained compensation.

The Council went into Committee for the consideration of the By-laws for the Regulation of Hackney Carriages and their Drivers.

Clauses 19, 22, and 52, were expunged; the remainder of the clauses were passed with amendments: and two clauses were added; one providing that any person having a carriage and refusing to pay the legal fare, on conviction thereof, shall be amerced in damages not exceeding £5; and the other to protect drivers from being compelled to take a fare from any person in a state of intoxication, or from improper characters.

The Council having resumed, the MAYOR reported.
On the motion of Alderman THURLOW, accorded by Mr. RYAN, the By-laws as passed were ordered to be engrossed, and referred to the City Solicitor for his perusal and advice; to be again brought before the Council at their next meeting.
Council adjourned at half-past eight o'clock.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR. BATHURST.

BATHURST.

Coronn's Inquestra.—On Saturday, the 18th in inquest was held at the Queen's Arms Innon some human bones Sund in a small box the previous day; it appeared that on Friday a portion of earth on the banks of the Vale Creek had been washed away by a flood in the creek, and left exposed a small box, which was discovered by a boy named Butler, living near the spot; on getting the box cleared from the earth, it was found to contain human bones, information was given to the chief constable, and a jury summoned. After a patient investigation of four hours, the jury returned a verificit that the bones were human bones of an infant, but there was no evidence to show how it came by its death, or how the bones were placed where they were found. Since the inquest we have ascertained that about three years since a town an from the bush, with her husband, put up at an inn in Durham-street, then kept by Mrs. Black; that during the night the woman was seized with the pains of labour, and delivered of a still-born child; the waiter at the inn put the body in a small box, and buried it mear the creek, and to the best of his recollection, near the spot where the box of bones was found. There is every probability that they were the bones of the child so buried.—Another inquest was held the same day at the Carriers Arms, on the body of a man named Robert Baird, alias Scotch Bob, who had died suddenly that morning. It appeared that the deceased had, sbout three weeks since, come into Bathurst from the bush in an ill estate of health, he had been an old customer at the inn, and being destitute, Mr. Arthur kindly allowed him to remain on the premises and get his meals, until he might recover, the man attended Dr. Machattie, who prescribed and furnished medicine for him, desiring the man to call again; this however he did not do, and the doater heard nothing further of him until called in on the evening of Friday last, when he found the man in nearly a dying state; he prescribed a blister and some medicine, giving it as his op

Yet such is the position of the buildonine who has two-thirds of our money on pure fiction, and the remaining third on a tangible and convertible security. But witness the practical as well as theoretical absurdity of this notable scheme.—If we require gold to guarantee a small portion of our circulating medium, why are not Exchequer Bills convertible into gold on demand ? If our national credit alone is capable of supporting Exchequer Bills, why not national notes ? On what basis are thirty-two millions not wested in Savings Banks? On what road our eight hundred millions of public debt? Upon credit atone; and if credit can support these larger sums, why is it incopable of sustaining the smaller sums?

The Bill of 1664 has snoother pseulisriy not generally understood, which we cannot explain better than in the language of Mr. Wright, an intelligent banker at Nottingham. The death, onesewe the goultenant, west thoughts. The sum department (having lent an equivalent to the State) is allowed to issue fourteen millions of notes without gold to snawer them, but required to hold gold against any further amount issued to the Banking. Department for the purpose of business. Thus, when the bank has an issue of twenty millions, alt millions are unavailable for any other purpose than the payment of notes in excess of the fourteen millions. The public isbour un-lev the falleny of supposing, when they see the Bank has ten millions to here offers, that the has ten millions do do one of the country, ordinary and extraordinary." THE EXPECTED REAPPEARANCE OF THE CELLEBRATED COMET OF 1264 AND 1566.

(From the Proceedings of the Reyal Astronomical Society, No. 14.)

The time is now near at hand when the return of the comet of 1294 and 1558, signalised by Mr. Dunthorne and M. Pingré, may be expected to take place. It is therefore desirable that observers should be in possession of everything that may tend to facilitate their search for the comet; and I venture to communicate to the Society the results of some recent calculations of my own on the subject, preceded by a very brief view of the principal circumstances connected with former appearances of the comet, and a short notice of calculations already published.

"The great and celebrated comet," of 1264, as Pingre terms it, is mentioned by nearly all the European historians of the time, and was observed by the astronomers of the dynasties then reigning in the north and south of China. It is described as presenting a most imposing appearance, with a tail 100° in length, stretching from the east part of the "mid-heaven." The comet was of "surprising magnitude," far exceeding any remembered by those who beheld it." Contemporary writers generally considered it the precurser of the death of Pope Urban IV., and many of them relate that it disappeared on the same night that the Pope died, or on October 2; thus, in the words of Thierri de Vaucouleurs, Quo (Urbano) morients, velut mortem eegnosceret eiges.

Apparens minime scale of splendour as in 1264,

Apparens minime stells comsta fait.

In 1556 the appearance of the comet was not on the same scale of splendour as in 1264, but still was sufficiently imposing to call forth from historians the epithets "ingens of lucidum sidus." It was observed by Paul Fabricius, a mathematician and physician at the Court of the Emperor Charles V., of Austria. M. Pingré, the celebrated consetographer, sought in vain for the original observations; the only information he could find on the subject was contained in a small rough chart found in Lycouthenes and other authors. I have before (Ast. Nach., 493) suggested the probability that these observations were given by Fabricius in his work upon the somet, published at Nuraberg in 1856, and mentioned by

If this ephemeris be compared with the descriptions of the commer's apparent path is the heavens, we shall find the agreement as close as could be expected, considering the uncertainty and irregularity of the data.

With the above elements reduced to 12%, the time of perihelion was found to be July 13.42 .c. assuming with Pingrá, that the counet was in longitude 120 when the sun had reached the 11th degree of Leo, according to the narration of Thierri de Vaucouleurs. The geocentric places of the comet, Greenwich mean midnight, old style, would then be as follows:—

It appears from this ephemoris, that according to the most probable supposition we can make respecting the time of peribelies without actual calculation of the perturbations, the approaching respectance will be extremely unknownable for observations; and it is therefore the more desirable that those who look out for comest should be on the alert. Nearly the whole of the vent trajectory of this comet lies believe the plane of the celiptic, and for from the paths of the beyon planets, but it extends into space more than twice the distance of Reptune; and early we are not yet able to any what causes may operate, at this immense distance from the sun, to affect the time of the sext return to perfusion. If, however, the count can be detected and observed, we shall than have the means of ascertaining something more on these points.

CELEBRATED BALEBITE ESTATE, now in the occupation of Meesrs. Busby, whose property it adjoins.

The land now offered was reserved as the choicest portion of the cetate, when the remainder was disposed of. On the margin of the Muanurra the township of Dalkeith has been laid out, which contains already a considerable population. The land and town allotments will be put up in one or more lots to suit purchasers. The main road from Maitland to the Liverpool Plains passes through the township; and, altogether, the property now offered, whether viewed as a good investment for the espitalist, or a convenient homestead for the granier, is one of the most desirable properties which the auctioneer has had placed in his hands for some time past.

THE TERMS WILL BE EXTREMELY LIBERAL and to a party buying the whole estate, arrangements could be made for allowing the greater portion of the purchase money to remain at a low rate of interest. 10190
